

Rev. Joe L. Taybron

Pastor Joe Taybron assumed the position of Senior Pastor of Legacy Community Church (formerly Renaissance Church) in January 2014. The congregation not only reflects a diverse expression, (different ethnicities) but believes that such an expression is the clarion call for the Kingdom of God for the 21st century church today. In such a role, he has developed an evangelistic/relational ministry called “Crossing the Street,” where his congregants are challenged to encounter people from all walks of life in very pragmatic ways.

During his tenure as Associate Pastor at San Francisco Christian Center (SFCC), Pastor Joe created Front Line Ministries where he built relationships with both the marginalized and at-risk people of the city of San Francisco. In addition to the inner city work, he presided and cared for the financial provisions of missionaries in 11 countries throughout the world, making sure that SFCC was viably connected with third world countries, fulfilling the great commission found in Mk. 16:15: “Go into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature.”

Along with his many responsibilities as Pastor since 2001, he has proven to be a gifted and effective pastoral counselor.

He is married to Gail Taybron, a wonderful woman who shares his passion for evangelism and his approach to holistic ministry. He is the proud father and grandfather of daughter Vaquesha Taybron and granddaughter Energy. In his spare time, Pastor Joe enjoys catching up on his reading, playing a round of golf and connecting with extended family.
